How this workbook works

Every lesson uses the same learning rhythm. Familiar structure leaves more attention for Hebrew.

1. LOOK Name the letter or mark before making a sound.

2. NOTICE Use one memorable visual cue, then check the real feature.

3. SAY Listen to a teacher model, echo, and keep the sound brief.

4. BUILD Join a letter and vowel, then blend into a word.

5. CHECK Show what is secure and name what still needs practice.

6. ASK Use the Havari question to make learning conversational.

Teacher accuracy promise

Mnemonics are doors, not definitions. Teacher notes preserve pronunciation differences and exceptions without overloading the learner.

Quiet Doorways: Aleph and Ayin

א ב ג ד ה ו ז ח ט י כ ל מ נ ס ע פ צ ק ר ש ת

BIG IDEA Aleph and Ayin are quiet letter doorways in the pronunciation we are learning. A vowel mark supplies the voice.

TEACHER SAYS Point to the letter first, then look underneath. The letter is quiet; the mark tells our mouth to say ah.

Notice

- Patach is our stick vowel: a short line under the letter.
- Open your mouth as if the doctor says, ‘Say ahhh.’
- Kamatz is the stick vowel with a handle. In today’s words, it also says ah.

א ב

א ב ג ד

TEACHER NOTE Pronunciation note: Ayin is heard as a throat sound in some Hebrew traditions. Kamatz can sometimes sound like oh; this lesson uses common beginner ah examples.

I can find Aleph, Ayin, Patach, and Kamatz.

Ball or Void: Bet and Vet

ב ב ם

BIG IDEA Bet and Vet share one body. A ball in the center cues b; a void in the center cues v.

TEACHER SAYS Look inside before you speak: ball means Bet, b. Void means Vet, v.

Notice

- Bet has a ball in the center: ב = b.
- Vet has a void where the ball would be: ם = v.
- Sheva is two tiny footsteps. Sometimes they move with a very short helper sound; sometimes they rest and are silent.

ב ב

ב ב

ברכה מלכה

TEACHER NOTE Sheva note: do not teach one fixed sound. At a word's beginning it often supports a very short sound; elsewhere it is often silent. Model the whole word before asking the learner to decide.

Ball or Void: Bet and Vet

3. Sheva is two tiny footsteps. Sometimes they move with a very short helper sound; sometimes they rest and are silent.

בְּ בְּ בְּ בְּ

I look inside the letter before choosing b or v.

HAVARI QUESTION Are the Sheva footsteps moving or resting in this word?
